Title: ANIMAL RIGHTS/ENVIRONMENTAL
EXTREMIST MATTERS
Kimberly-Clark Corporation

Synopsis: To provide recipients with recent events surrounding the Kimberly-Clark Corporation and their upcoming annual shareholder meeting.

Details: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] maintains an ongoing liaison with the Dallas Division of the FBI. In 2004, GREENPEACE began protesting, under a campaign called KLEERCUT, the KCC based on the actions of a subsidiary company SCOTT (SCOTT paper products). The basis for the actions was KCC involvement in logging in Canada's Boreal Forest. According to GREENPEACE, the Boreal Forest is one of the last ancient, old growth forests in North America. With the permission of the Canadian government, KCC does limited logging within the forest.

In 2005, there were small demonstrations throughout the country frequently consisting of one or two people handing out GREENPEACE/KLEERCUT literature. During the annual shareholder's meeting held in Irving, Texas, there was a truck decorated as a large box of tissue advertising the GREENPEACE/KLEERCUT campaign accompanied by eight individuals. Photographs of the event were posted on the internet.

In the last month, there have been two protests, one at the University of Tennessee and one at the University of Georgia, against KCC. The protest at the University of Georgia involved a dunk tank decorated to look like a toilet and people were encouraged to dunk the an individual dressed as the KCC CEO. The activity at the University of Tennessee occurred during a career fair sponsored by the University. KCC sent a representative from the KCC Administrative facility, 520 West Summit Hill Drive, Knoxville, Tennessee, 37902, to the recruiting fair. While at the fair, the recruiter was subjected to repeated approaches by GREENPEACE/KLEERCUT protesters. The majority of the activity was one or two individuals approaching the KCC table and asking about environmental policies and then making statements out of a pre-printed booklet. Some of the protestors were attempting to make a scene by wearing purple wings and reciting from the pre-printed booklet. At the end of the career fair, two individuals unrolled a large banner denouncing KCC.

The 2006 KCC Annual Shareholder's meeting will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel, Irving, Texas, on April 27, 2006. KCC has been in contact with the Irving Police Department, the Dallas Police Department, the Texas Department of Public Safety, and the FBI as part of their preparations for the meeting. Writer anticipates continued protest activity and a possibility for increased activity at the Irving, Texas Headquarters facility and the KCC Administrative Facility, 520 West Summit Hill Drive, Knoxville, Tennessee, 37902, as the shareholder meeting approaches.
